OUT 01:50 — then this happened

WHY IN

Liquidity grab. 01:20 candle spiked 4,030.30, took the highs, closed straight back under the trendline. Short the retest at 4,022.

WANTED

Back down through 4,014-4,016 and out through the 23:30 low at 4,013.60.

WHY OUT

Hourly close coming and the 5-minute wasn't driving into it. Protecting capital. Felt panicky — funded account near break-even.

THEN

Next candle. 4,021.50 → 4,012.90, low of 4,010.80. Straight through target, five minutes after I was out.

THE CATCH

Got in off the 30-minute. Got out off the 5-minute. Not the timeframe the trade was built on.

How to tell if you are a cunt.

- 1. Punt a trade out of boredom?
- 2. Risk more because the last few were losers?
- 3. Bin something because it hasn't worked lately?
- 4. Reckon the bloke up 40% in a week is any good?
- 5. Bail on a trade for fear of what it might do?
- 6. Move a stop to break-even just so you can't lose?

Out early: 1 of 1 · cost -$292.80

Let the plan finish: 0 of 1 · stopped out: 0 of 1

Setups that actually worked: 1 of 1

Good idea. Bad exit.
